The Pilará Tennis Club, which opened in 2007, became an immediate success with membership and tournaments — hosting the ITF Fed Cup competition in 2007 and 2008. The Club includes the Pilará Training Center and Tennis Academy, attracting both amateur and professional players from throughout South America.

The Club features hard courts, Argentine red clay courts, a recessed tournament court with permanent spectator seating, ample space for temporary spectator seating, two indoor courts, and dormitories housing up to 24 Academy residents.

The Clubhouse includes administrative offices, a Pro Shop, locker rooms, sports snack bar, formal dining rooms, a library/living room for that relaxed moment, a complete fitness center and an outdoor terrace, both overlooking the exterior courts.
