The Southeast Park and Tennis Complex in Columbia, South Carolina is the newest and largest public outdoor tennis facility of the 8 locations maintained by the city's Department of Parks and Recreation. Situated south of downtown in a 62-acre park shaded by thousands of trees, the Complex features sixteen (4 soft and 12 hard) lighted courts carefully tucked into the existing tree canopy with a boardwalk skirting a six-acre pond. Future plans include 14 additional courts, a pro shop, restrooms, an environmental education center, public meeting space, a picnic shelter with restrooms, additional walking trails, and a playfield.
