

ATP Tour World Headquarters

Ponte Vedra Beach, Florida

The ATP Tour constructed a new tennis facility in 1985. In 1991 it was determined that problems had developed with the hard courts and there was a need for red clay courts for players to train on.

The clubhouse/stadium court had severe drainage problems and required reconstruction.

Global was engaged to analyze the problems, to redesign the courts, and to convert two courts to red clay. The stadium court was redesigned and completely reconstructed.