

United States Tennis Association

National Tennis Center
Flushing Meadows, New York

The USTA selected Global to design the first six tennis courts to be constructed at the new tennis center. These courts were also designed to support an air structure with all mechanical requirements included in the design.

Global was again selected to perform the construction management for the fifty-two tennis courts prepared for the new tennis center completed for the 1997 U.S. Open.